

Closest Shave:

SUGARING AT THE SWEET SPOT

While the rest of you wax and shave your bodies down to the basal layer of epidermis, some of us more sensitive-skinned gals break into a cold sweat remembering the nasty rash, scalded skin and ingrown hairs incurred after frightening encounters with sadistic aestheticians and their bubbling cauldrons of hot wax. That's why we totally freaked when we discovered The Sweet Spot, a skin-care salon in Fremont that uses warm sugar in lieu of hot wax for silky smooth, low pain- and sweet smelling!- hair removal. Our palest, most sensitive-skinned editor (we're talking sun allergies here, people!) sacrificed her bikini line for the sake of research and reported amazing results. No bumps, itch or rash- even the grow-back time three weeks later was sweet.

Editor's Picks are written by Ali Basye, Ashley Breckel, Jenny Fox, Suzanne Rugh and J.B. Wogan.

To read all of Seattle Bride editor's picks of the best of 2007, pick up a copy of the Fall/Winter 2007 issue, on newsstands now.